Many golfers have missed one or two, but Art Lypka (right) is the only golfer to have competed in every one of the 25 annual Elk Point Oilmen's Golf Tournaments. Ken Ference congratulated Lypka on his long-standing commitment to the tournament, first as part of the organizing committee for 12 years, and later as an annual competitor. Oilmen host 25th annual golf tourney

Elk Point Oilmen's Association hosted their 25th annual golf tournament this weekend, with a full complement of 128 golfers hitting the links to compete for the honours in 16 flights.

The weekend wound up with a steak barbecue and awards ceremony on Saturday evening, where Coun. Dick Millar welcomed the golfers on behalf of the Town of Elk Point and said the community "certainly enjoys your participation." He thanked the Oilmen's Association "for all you have done in the community over the past 25 years."

Tournament chairman Robyn Moroziuk thanked all the participants, and noted that, "a lot of effort goes into something like this. He praised Corrine Cumby for her vital role in the preliminary planning process and presented her with a gift of appreciation. A second gift went to your reporter for ongoing coverage of the event.

"We started with sand greens and a budget of $18,000, now we have grass greens and the budget is up to $50,000," tournament committee member Ken Ference told the crowd.

"One guy has been here every year: Art Lypka."

"Over the 25 years, there have been a lot of changes," Lypka said. He was involved in the tournament committee for 12 of those years, and emphasized, "we couldn't do it without our volunteers."

Ference called for a round of applause for the sponsors; who are another vital part of the event.

The Oilmen's Association are planning a 25th anniversary celebration for their organization next May, and will be contacting all their past and present members, Ference said.

Then it was on to the awards.

The weekend started off with a Thursday night scramble, with Dave DeSilva, Tom McDougall, Tyson Warawa and Wayne Mudryk declared the winners.

Official opening to celebrate river's history, beauty

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

The history and beauty of the North Saskatchewan River will be celebrated this Saturday as the community gathers at the river campsite south of Elk Point for the official opening of the viewing deck.

The deck, jointly funded by a provincial grant, the Town of Elk Point and the County of St. Paul was built earlier this year, and was completed just hours before the arrival of the David Thompson Centennial Brigade on May 17.

The campsite kitchen shelter has also been refurbished with a new metal roof and a paint job, and the area between the camp-sites and the new deck has been cleared and landscaped.

The opening ceremonies, including a ribbon cutting and unveiling of dedication plaques, are scheduled for noon, with the 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. event also to include a hot dog and hamburger barbecue and musical entertainment. Those attending the event are asked to bring lawn chairs.

The event will serve as recognition of the governments who funded the creation of the spacious deck structure, the volunteers who spearheaded and worked on the project and the building and landscaping crew who made the concept a reality.

Wellsites not a problem, council agrees

By VICKI BROOKER

Review Staff

An application by Canadian Natural Resources Ltd. to drill wells near Highway 41 between of Elk Point and the North Saskatchewan River was brought before Elk Point town council last week for their input.

Mayor Parrish Tung saw "nothing that would threaten the safety of our residents" in connection with the new wells, but felt "we should discuss our concerns about the river campsite" with CNRL, including the access road and a grove of trees between one of the proposed sites and the campsite.

"We should let them know we own the campsite and have just fixed it up."

Economic Development coordinator Bob Bezpalko said he hoped the trees remain in place "to muffle the sound," but agreed the drilling would "not really" affect the town.

Town manager Myron Goyan said one landowner in the area had objected to the drilling.

Signage, staff shortage

Bezpalko said he had met with the owners of both motels regarding highway signage, and found that while the lack of signage is a concern to both, bigger problems are the lack of staff both for themselves and for local restaurants that are unable to open early because of the shortage. The inability to find a restaurant open early for breakfast has made some patrons choose to stay in other communities, they said.

Regarding signage, Bezpalko said that quotes are still coming in and that he has asked for prices on the industrial park signs. Signs for the Iron Horse Trail will be discussed at the Aug. 15 Riverland Recreational Trail Society meeting.

Rental housing

One possible reason for the lack of staff is considered to be the difficulty in finding accommodation, and Bezpalko said there "has been interest expressed" in building a rental unit complex. "I don't know council's feeling on affordable housing, but I do want to promote that land is available."

Youth buy-in Bezpalko recently spoke with a store clerk who pointed out that "kids have nothing to do," and who suggested improvements to the skateboard park. Bezpalko said he asked the clerk to see if the youngsters would design such a park for the town.

Fire hall funding

Council moved to apply for their accumulated infrastructure funding to build the new fire hall. They also agreed to hire Bernie Genereux as the project manager for the construction of the fire hall, effective April 1, 2009.

A motion to pay for the firefighters' new air packs from fire department capital funding was approved.

Seniors Advocate

Council appointed FCSS director Deanna Easthope as the Elk Point's seniors' advocate, a position that would involve acting as liaison between the town and its senior residents and telephoning the community's seniors on an ongoing basis to check on their wellbeing.

Ambulance contracts

Aspen Regional Health has advised the town that as of April 1, 2009, emergency medical services will be contracted by the new health super board, and municipalities will no longer be able to subsidize the services. Mayor Tung said county Reeve Robert Bouchard had been at a meeting with Aspen and had told him, "it's out of our hands. They will be negotiating with the ambulance owners."

NLLS director updates town council on benefits of system membership

By VICKI BROOKER

Review Staff

Northern Lights Library System executive director Mircea Panciuk visited last week's town council meeting to give an update on the services that are provided in return for the fees paid by the town and library board.

He also explained the relationship between Northern Lights (NLLS), the Regional Automation Consortium (TRAC) and the Alberta Library (TAL) Card. There are 54 member municipalities in the NLLS, 156 libraries in TRAC and 265 libraries in TAL, making libraries "one of the best examples the province has of cooperation."

He noted that Northern Lights cardholders have access to 33 licensed online databases covering topics from agriculture to business to genealogy to health and medical resources, literature and the arts.

One of the advantages of library systems is their purchasing power and economy of scale, and Panciuk said libraries have "a valuable economic role." NLLS purchased 24,380 books for its member libraries last year and saved over $72,000 on those purchases. Elk Point Municipal Library received 561 of those books and saved over $3,550.

NLLS libraries circulated 704,620 items in 2007, 12,981 of those in Elk Point, which has 338 town residents and 200 county residents in its membership, with another 17 cardholders coming from other municipalities.

Elk Point Library sent out 2,102 items by interlibrary loan in 2007 and brought in 1,589 items from other libraries for their patrons, saving the library more than $250,000 over purchasing the items. Interlibrary loans give cardholders access to a vast number of items from across the province and even further afield. Panciuk demonstrated the "power of interlibrary loans" by relating the story of a professor in England who found the book he was seeking by that method, in the Myrnam community library, which is part of NLLS.

NLLS receives $3.51 per capita from the Town of Elk Point and an equal amount from the library board, along with $3.22 per capita from the province on Elk Point's behalf, and provides a total of $15,998 in services to the Elk Point Municipal Library, including $3,096 in book allotment. The balance came in the form of services, from purchasing and processing materials to shipping, online information services, programs and access to expanded collections.

Panciuk reported that in 2009, Alberta libraries are going to a new computer system with software costing $700,000 and training in its operation another $300,000. The upgrade is necessary because the current Dynix system "came over with Columbus" and no longer has maintenance available.

"The new Polaris system is Windows-base, point-and-click," he noted.

Many existing library computers will not be compatible with the new system, and to help the libraries cope, "the directors have been able to buy each library at least one new computer, some of them two, so the public access computers will be compatible with the new system. It was incumbent on us to do that," Panciuk said. A training schedule is being set up so that "when we go live, all the staff will know how to use it."

In conclusion, Panciuk told council, "we need your money so we can help your library manager to serve the ratepayers of Elk Point."

EDITORIAL

Lesson of Olympic proportions

Two young girls learned a lesson this past week that we had all hoped was a thing of the past: that appearance is everything. It is a bit of a shock to discover that even today, a melodious voice is not always enough, if physical attractiveness doesn't go with it. On the other hand, a beautiful face was not enough either, without the voice to go with it.

This same search for perfection has filled the pockets of plastic surgeons, diet doctors and physical trainers in recent years, and past generations laced themselves into health-threatening corsets, and endured hours under primitive permanent wave machines in their quest for outer beauty.

This focus is not confined to the Olympics, of course. Beauty pageants and searches for top models and singing idols show that clearly. That's the name of those games, and the people who take part in them know from the start that looks or voice are the most important criteria for their fame.

Still, it seems inconceivable that a young person with talent be hidden in the wings, her voice supposedly coming from a mouth with straighter teeth in a prettier face. Couldn't the opening ceremony organizers have looked further for a girl with both voice and looks, and not traumatized two girls who will spend the rest of their lives knowing that they were found wanting?

WAY BACK WHEN...

Olympics, Summer Games, Oilmen's golf

HERE'S THE NEWS THAT MADE THE HEADLINES OF THE LAKELAND REVIEW AND ELK POINT REVIEW FOR THE WEEK OF AUGUST 19 IN...

1988

Northern Valley's St. John the Baptist Ukrainian Catholic Church celebrated 75 years of parish history as more than 350 people packed the historic building for a special service, dinner and program. Elk Point's Fun in the Sun program wound up with some pint-sized Olympics.

1993

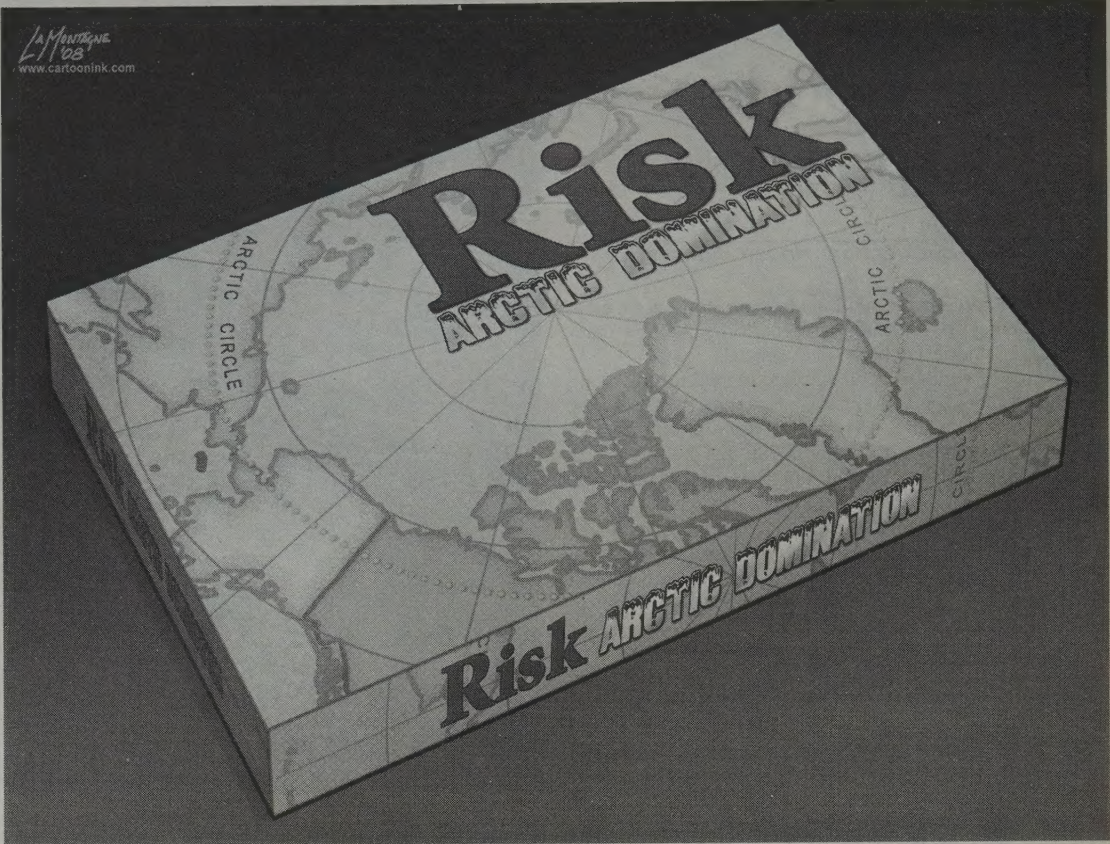

Shanna Baker and her horse, Serene Liberty Lee, brought home two gold and one silver medal from the Alberta Summer Games in Red Deer, while track and field athlete Joni Matthews jumped her way to a national championship in Saskatoon. Golf ball-sized hail pounded fields and farmyards in the area and Elk Point Town Council had to stop their meeting for more than 10 minutes as smaller hail pelted the Town Office roof, and made it too noisy for councillors to hear above the din, as runoff from the storm swept by, covering sidewalks and half the street with water.

1998

Wendy Young was the only local competitor to claim a championship at the Elk Point Rodeo, with the weather man for once cooperating with the rodeo committee. Ken Bozniak finished two strokes ahead of closest competitor Pat Nairn to win the championship flight at the 15th Annual Oilmen's Golf Tournament, with a total of 17 flights taking part.

2003

Elk Point Oilmen's Association hosted their 20th annual Oilmen's Golf Tournament, with 120 participants playing two 18-hole rounds on their way to the prizes, where Robyn Moroziuk won his second championship title. Two local businesses, Truck-In 2000 and Elk Point Co-op, supported Alberta's hard-hit beef producers by firing up the barbecues, Truck-in cooking burgers for five days in a row for their customers, and Co-op donating proceeds from their steak barbecue to the Elk Point 4-H Beef Club.

GUEST COLUMN

Back to school

It is now the end of August and the thoughts for all students returning to school are that there is only a few days left of summer vacation time. Oh my, where did the summer go! But you know what? If students would look forward to education as a time of opportunity to learn, than it becomes an exciting time. Yes, it is something to look forward to and the attitude becomes: "I can't wait to get started!"

Thinking about education, there is a story of a young child being taught by his/her mother to not touch a hot stove. The mother would tell the child to not touch a hot stove for it would burn and hurt you. Technically, all the mother is doing is stating a law. However, if the child touched the hot stove, the child would be burned and would then cry and complain of how it hurts. So who is then punished for not obeying the law? Of course it is the child who touched the hot stove who will be punished. From this experience, the child would then learn the importance of obeying the law to not touch the hot stove for it will burn and hurt. From this story, there are many messages. The most important message is that there is value in learning. In this case, it is for our own protection. We can carry the story further and state that education not only provides protection it also can provide preparation for life. We all know that it takes a certain amount of education to become employable in any type of job.

Now that we have established the importance of education, what happens when our young people decide to "sow some wild oats" or "take the wrong turn along the way"? The problem with the perspective that develops during these times is that they have lost sight of their original goal. They make their own standards to benefit themselves and their own selfish interests. Their perspective of what has happened becomes their standard and for some their god. To put it simply, they have decided they can get any job they want and they don't need any education to do that particular job. The reality is, this may be true for a period of time in their lives. And yes, there is a reality that some employers can't find workers to do the required job, so they will hire anyone with the promise they will train the worker on the job. This may or may not be successful for either party. The bottom line is that receiving education first pays dividends in the end.

There is an important viewpoint that needs to be remembered. If you are a person who has "sown some wild oats" or "taken a wrong turn", and have made the decision to further your education, remember to go for it.

Neal A Maxwell is quoted as saying: "Do not let your yesterday hold your tomorrow hostage; instead press forward and forget that which was past." In other words, do your best in getting a good education today and don't let what has past affect your efforts today. Go for it! You can do it! Above all, believe in yourself and show patience with yourself.

Speaking of going back to school and the thought that school bells will be ringing again soon, have you young people ever thought of asking your parents or grandparents what they remember about their school days? Yes, there are some differences. Many of today's older adults received their education in a one-room school. The good old school days included lots of memorization and recitation. Students were asked to stand and recite a previously assigned lesson. As a result, your senior adults have lots of memories of facts and figures. Therefore, going back to school brings back many memories to many of us. So to everyone going back to school, may we wish you all the best, and good luck with your educational pursuits.

County not to push further with damaged municipal reserve land

BY JANICE HUSER
Review Contributor

After meeting with a nearby landowner who was involved with clearing a portion of Municipal Reserve land at Lac Sante in the Sante Hills Estate subdivision, County of St. Paul council passed a motion at its Aug. 12 meeting not to proceed with the issue any further.

The County of St. Paul had received a number of complaints regarding the clearing of the land, and had ordered Darrell Tarapaski to stop any work being done to the land in question.

Marshall Tarapaski, a nearby landowner involved, attended Council's last regular meeting to explain what had taken place. He explained that the MR land is adjacent to his land, and that he was involved in removing rocks from the lakeshore.

"It's pretty hard to walk through that," explained Marshall, who handed out photographs of the land being discussed. It was noted that the grass had already begun to regrow on the disturbed land.

"That's where the beach used to be a long time ago," said Marshall.

"It should be remediated back to its natural state," explained Bryan Bepalko, County of St. Paul bylaw officer, adding the County will be responsible for any damage done to the lake due to the disruption of the land.

Public Works Superintendent Leo deMoissac added that any more work done to the MR required a permit from Alberta Environment.

After discussing the issue, what exactly had been done to the land, and the type of land in question, council carried a motion not to proceed with the matter any further.

"I can't see (any) big consequences of this," said Coun. Glen Ockerman.

Boat launch

The County of St. Paul has received letters from Alberta Environment and Alberta Sustainable Resource Development regarding a boat launch at Lac Sante, council heard last week.

The letters contain "a lot of stipulations," explained deMoissac. At the July council meeting, council passed a motion to hire a consultant to look into fixing the damaged boat launch, which has been closed since early July.

No timelines have been established regarding when the launch will be reopened, but deMoissac told council that it is likely the County will "have to keep the consultant on board" with the project.

Fine Arts theatre

After previously declining to support the project, the County of St. Paul will now in fact support an initiative to build a fine arts theatre in the Town of St. Paul.

County council passed a motion to ratify a letter that is to be sent to the Town of St. Paul, acknowledging its support of the project. Currently, plans are to build the theatre onto the existing Rec Centre.

The letter states that the County of St. Paul supports "in principle" the proposed facility, later adding, "we would also ask that you understand that this letter does not infer any commitment of financial support now or in the future."

Council unanimously passed a motion to ratify the letter.

Watershed Society

The Lac Sante Watershed Society recently sent a letter to the County of St. Paul explaining its interest in being involved in the drafting process of an area structure plan being conducted by the counties of St. Paul and Two Hills at Lac Sante.

"I think the process involves everyone," said Reeve Robert Bouchard.

Coun. Maxine Fodness explained that she believes the Society is interested in having councils meet with the society's executive members, separate from the public meetings that are to be scheduled as part of the ASP process.

"I think the process is already set out," said Ockerman.

But Bouchard added he didn't see anything wrong with meeting the Watershed Society for a set time prior to the public meetings. He affirmed that the ASP is to be a "municipal plan."

Council agreed to allow a slotted time for the Society to meet with St. Paul and Two Hills councils prior to the public meetings.

Horseshoe Bay

The County of St. Paul and the Summer Village of Horseshoe Bay council have come to a joint use and operation agreement regarding the disposal of waste.

Horseshoe Bay will create a small transfer station, as per County specifications, and the County will place garbage bins on the site. Horseshoe Bay residents will pay 0.75 mills, the same as other municipalities, to the County for services rendered.

The County will dispose of the waste on a weekly or bi-weekly basis. The Summer Village will also help offset any deficit that the County may incur.

Oiling protocol

The drafting of a protocol to deal with the oiling of roads in sensitive areas, specifically near lakes, is soon to begin.

Council passed a motion to have a draft by Oct. 15 at the earliest, and that the protocol will deal with lakeshore subdivisions. Council also agreed to develop an emergency response plan.

Tradeshow

The County will split the cost of having a booth at the Sherwood Park Tradeshow next April with the Town of St. Paul.

"We have to try to attract people here," said Coun. Frank Sloan.

Feasibility Study

Council passed a motion to hire Associated Engineering Alberta Ltd. to do a Regional Water Feasibility Study, pending approval of funding from the province.

Support for sports

The North East Alberta Basketball team and Elk Point Minor Ball will both receive financial support from the County, as per policy.

Bengals ready to defend title

By MIKE POMERLEAU

Review Contributor

It's nearly fall, which means it's time for some football. The St. Paul Bengals have long been awaiting this season and last week, the waiting ended as fall camp finally got underway.

The Bengals have a different look, mainly since the team is smaller this year than it was last year. The team lost a lot of veteran players from last year's team but still has a strong core group with a few new faces added to the mix. The team is excited about the new look and looking to defend the Wheatland Bantam Football League (WBFL) title it won last season, according to coach John Lumby.

"We're the champs and our goal is to defend the title," he said. "We did lose a lot of really good players from last year but we still have some vets and there's a lot of new guys that are coming up and learning the system and looking good."

The Bengals won't have much time to prepare for their first game of the season. They have a pre-season game this weekend against the Grand Centre Royals, which takes place at St. Paul Regional High School. Then next weekend, the season gets underway as the team hosts the Lloydminster Chargers, one of the new editions to the WBFL.

The Chargers, the Lloydminster Mustangs and the Bonnyville Voyageurs have all joined the league, making it a seven team league that already included the Bengals, Royals, Lac La Biche Drillers and Wainwright Commandos.

The change also means a different schedule format; the Bengals will still play a six game schedule, but they'll play each team in the league once instead of twice.

Early on this season, there is little room for error for the Bengals as they gear up to face the Chargers, a team that was runner-up in the Prairie Thunder Football League last year.

The Bengals will also play three of their first four games on the road against very tough opponents, so defending their title may be easier said than done.

"It'll be tough but we'll be ready," said Lumby, noting that both of Lloydminster's teams look like formidable opposition. "So we have to hit the ground running and try to get off to a good start."

The pre-season game against Grand Centre takes place this Saturday at 4 p.m. at Regional. The Bengals take on the Chargers at 1 p.m. at Regional in their first season game on Aug. 30.

County continues debating RV use on lots

Bylaw amended with recorded vote

By JANICE HUSER

Review Contributor

Changes to the Land Use Bylaw regarding placement of RVs on lots throughout the County of St. Paul were once again discussed at this month's regular County council meeting on Aug. 12.

A group of family members who purchased a lake lot at Crestview Beach last year approached council last Tuesday in hopes of receiving permits for four RVs to be placed on the lot.

Currently, the lake lot has four owners, and each owner's family would like to be able to place an RV on the lot, explained Kammi Devine, one of the owners. When the group purchased the lot last year, they were not aware of the change that would be made to the Land Use Bylaw, which prohibits more than two RVs on CR2 zoned lots.

The group requested that the County reconsider the group's situation. Family members explained that they had asked many questions regarding permits, and took all the steps they thought were required.

"We thought we did everything according to the bylaw," said Devine, who explained that the group had made the effort to purchase permits for each RV, and were under the impression they would receive invoices in the mail.

The majority of councillors agreed, and felt the family had taken the proper steps, but were caught in the midst of the changes.

"I think that they adhered to everything at the time," said Coun. Cliff Martin.

Coun. Glen Ockerman later added, "They got caught in the trap . . . their intentions were always there."

Coun. Maxine Fodness told council that she felt the owners were not in fact registered owners of land at the time they applied for the permits, which is against the Land Use Bylaw, adding, "They weren't granted a development permit."

Fodness then requested a recorded vote when a motion to allow the family to place four RVs on the lot was made, as per the old bylaw. Fodness was the only councillor to vote against the motion, which was carried.

Following the delegation, a public hearing was held, and council was then presented with the second and third readings of Bylaw No. 1517, which amends Bylaw No. 1486. The bylaw pertains to CR1 districts, which are generally larger lots, not located near lakes.

The amended bylaw reads as follows: "An annual development permit shall be required for the placement of any more than two recreational vehicles on a lot if that recreational vehicle is not mobile, is on site for more than seven days or has any accessory buildings or structures associated with it. A development permit shall be required for the placement of any such accessory structures on a lot. The issuance of such a development permit shall be considered entirely discretionary."

During the public hearing, a member of the public asked council how the County would enforce the amended bylaw.

Aside from enforcement being generated by public complaint, Reeve Robert Bouchard responded by saying, "Laws are made for honest people for guidance," adding, people who break laws will do so regardless of the bylaws in place.

During the second reading of the bylaw, Fodness told council that she felt council was amending the wrong part of the bylaw.

Fodness was concerned that the bylaw would allow an infinite number of non-mobile RVs on a lot, as long as a permit was obtained. She added that council's original intention was to allow family get-togethers to take place on CR1 zoned lots.

Fodness requested a recorded vote be made when passing the second and third readings of the amended bylaw. Both Fodness and Martin voted against the amended bylaw.

Lee and Mable Wruth celebrate 50th anniversary

Lee and Mable Wruth cut their 50th Anniversary cake beside a photo taken on their wedding day, Aug. 22, 1958. The couple celebrated the golden milestone at the Elk Point Seniors Recreation Centre with a come-and-g-tea for large contingent of family and friends, who enjoyed a power point presentation of treasured family photos, reminiscing over albums, and listening to fiddle music by one of their many grandchildren. In addition to five biological children, the Wruths adopted three, were legal guardians of four, and have been foster parents for a total of 77 youngsters over the years, and now are Grandma and Grandpa to numerous grandchildren and great-grandchildren. In addition to teaching school for many years, Lee and his family raised and showed purebred Murray Grey cattle and were very much involved in the Elk Point 4-H Multi Club.

At left, Mable shows off her well-preserved wedding gown, and the pink formal worn by her sister as a bridesmaid at Lee and Mable's wedding.

Healthy eating for going back-to-school

By SUE MAH, MHSc, RD, REGISTERED DIETITIAN

The backpacks are all lined up, the lunch bags are labelled, and there's a new pair of shoes for each of the kids. It's back to school! The kids are all set, but are your fridge and freezer ready for the new routine?

According to a recent UrbanMoms.ca study, as soon as September rolls around, 48 per cent of Canadian moms will cut back on processed snacks and high fat treats, and will add more fruits and veggies to the family menu. Describing themselves as focused on nutrition, the majority of moms (81 per cent) also said they would choose healthy or organic alternatives of mini pizzas, chicken strips and other typical kid favourites if these choices were available.

The key to helping your kids get into a healthy eating routine now - and all year round - is to get your fridge and freezer in shape. It's all about making the healthy choices the easy choices. Here are a few tips to get you started:

1. Find a kiddy corner. Pick an accessible spot or shelf in the fridge and designate it as the kids' section where kids can help themselves. Fill it with cheese strings, individual servings of yogurt, and pre-washed fruit. Every day, put a different container filled with raw veggies and dip for the kids to snack on. Try baby carrots today, cucumber rounds next, and broccoli "trees" the day after that.

2. Personalize it. Make a ham and cheese tortilla wrap or leave a bowl of minestrone soup in the fridge with your child's name on it. When that hungry tween comes home after school, he'll be delighted to see a meal prepared especially for him! And, bonus - he'll be less tempted to comb through the pantry looking for a salty or sugary bite.

3. Count on convenience. There will be times when making a meal from scratch just isn't going to happen. When convenience calls, be on the lookout for healthier alternatives of your kids' favourites. For example, Life Choices, a Canadian food company, makes frozen chicken strips, fish fillets and mini pizzas that sneak in healthy ingredients such as whole oats, barley, millet, rye and triticale. Their new varieties of organic macaroni and cheese are the first of their kind in Canada and are also full of nutrients. The kids will love them for their taste and you'll love them for the nutrition!

Covering the basics is as easy as 1-2-3

With back-to-school season on the horizon parents will be shifting focus from summer activities to school routines. For children, back-to-school is synonymous with books and backpacks as well as playgrounds and minor league sports. And these carefree activities will inevitably result in minor cuts and scrapes that will require a little TLC from mom or dad.

Fall is an ideal time for parents to become savvy about proper wound care treatment. While most minor injuries typically don't require a trip to the emergency room, proper care is essential to avoid infection and other complications.

When it comes to correct treatment, most parents think they have all the facts. But a recent survey uncovered the truth - most don't know the right way to tend to a minor wound. More than three-quarters (76 per cent) of Canadians think airing out a cut or scrape speeds up the healing process. Despite popular belief, allowing a wound to scab actually impedes healing by creating a barrier between healthy skin cells.

Health professionals agree that quick and effective minor wound treatment is as easy as "CTC": clean the wound with warm soapy water, treat it with a topical antibiotic ointment, and cover it with a bandage until the wound has completely healed.

When a wound is left uncovered, exposed to dirt or harmful bacteria, the risk of infection can increase. Surprisingly, only 19 per cent of Canadian parents know that keeping their child's wound covered until it has completely healed is the best treatment option.

In fact, recent studies have shown that a combined treatment of applying a topical antibiotic, and covering the wound with a bandage will help a minor wound heal four days faster than when a bandage alone is utilized.

Heal cuts and zcrapes with three easy steps:

1. CLEAN - Cleaning a cut or scrape is the first step in infection defence. Any loose dirt or debris left in a cut or scrape can cause infection. Warm, soapy water will remove dirt and debris from the cut and minimize bacteria that can cause infection.

2. TREAT - Topical antibiotics keep the wound moist and form a protective coating that prevents infection and helps to speed up the healing process.

3. COVER - A bandage will protect the cut and scrape from dirt and debris during the healing process and prevent it from re-injury. The bandage should be changed every day to keep the area clean.

Minor vs. major: How to tell

Minor:

- The bleeding stops fairly quickly and doesn't require prolonged pressure
- After cleaning, the edges of the wound don't gape open
- The skin surrounding the wound is smooth

• The wound is clearly on the surface of the skin and does not have any depth

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of
Barrie McFADYEN
May 3, 1945 - Aug. 22, 2007

You had a way of bringing special meaning to my life, I was the lucky one to be your wife.

You helped me to grow and to realize, the fullness and the beauty in our lives. I counted my blessings every day, then God called and you went away, out of this world to a brighter day.

Suddenly my world of gladness, turned to deep sadness. My grief wears me down, I've shed so many tears, as I recall your love and devotion through the years.

For your sake and in memory of your name, every day I pray for the strength to do things the same, to fill the hours in useful ways and to have no more empty days.

I try to console myself, and say it was part of God's master plan, so I must accept it, if I can.

Though heaven and earth divide us and the distance is so great, I will always cherish the years that you were my mate. I know I must go on living my life and try to let go of the pain, missing you, remembering you, until we meet again.

Loving you always, Chris

In loving memory of our dear son, brother, brother-in-law and uncle.

A special smile, a special face, And in our hearts, a very special place.

No words we speak can ever say, How much we miss you every day We think of you always and often speak your name.

The times we shared together over the years;

Family gatherings at the farm, coffee time at Mom's

Are among the many memories we will always treasure.

You were always there when we needed you,

No task was ever too great or small,

With willing hands and a loving, caring heart,

You helped us through in your quiet, kind and humble way.

In our hearts you will be with us forever,

Loved and cherished in our memories.

Sadly missed and forever remembered - Mother, Malcolm and Marge and Family, and Myrna & Bill.

IN MEMORIAM

BALLAS, Peter

In loving memory of Peter Ballas, who passed away August 25, 2007.

One year has passed since that sad day,

When one we loved was called away.

God took him home - it was his will;

Within our hearts he liveth still.

Lovingly remembered by wife Anita, children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Major: Time for stitches

- It is difficult to stop the bleeding even after applying pressure over a prolonged period of time
- The cut gapes open and yellow, globular material is visible (subcutaneous fat)
- The skin around the wound is jagged
- If a cut looks serious do not delay treatment, as major wounds left more than 24 hours cannot be stitched.
